Wine making note

Laposa Alcohol-Free Welschriesling – Premium technology, authentic wine experience

Laposa Alcohol-Free Welschriesling is crafted from a fully fermented wine, from which the alcohol is removed using a modern membrane separation technology. This process operates on a physical separation principle under low thermal stress: the alcohol is selectively removed while preserving the wine's structure, acidity, and primary aromatic profile. It is a particularly gentle method, as it does not require high temperatures, allowing heat-sensitive aromas and flavor compounds to remain stable within the wine.

The advanced membrane system ensures that alcohol removal is carried out in a controlled and precise manner, resulting not simply in a non-alcoholic beverage, but in a refined wine that delivers a true wine experience, with a clean structure and elegant character.

The result is a fresh, vibrant, fruit-driven alcohol-free Welschriesling, with lively acidity, retaining the variety's lightness and distinctive Balaton style - without compromise, without alcohol.
